PREPAREDNESS.

(By Mary O. Carey, Talent, Ore.)

I went into my larder and viewed its contents o'er.

And truly felt a housewife's pride Of all my winter's store.

There were fruits and jams, and Jellies sweet,

Pickles, chow-chow and preserves, And catsup too for meat.

Peppers stuffed, and string beans Steamed and canned,

Corn sweet and white filled nicely In the jars by hand.

And as I looked the well-filled shelves So carefully o'er,

I said, "Let winter's snow and ice Come on,

I've plenty food in store."

The cribs are full of yellow corn, Fat pigs in the sty,

Old Bessie has a brand new calf; the Milk she will supply.

There's spuds and apples in the bins And yellow pumpkins, too;

The old turks are struttin' round, Until Thanksgiving's due.

So let the winter time come on—and Let the sleigh bells chime,

For, like the ant, we have laid by Food for the winter time.
